

Vintage glass rabbit dish with Maxim Organic Cotton Balls
We all have these funny things that get passed down from generation to generation. This was probably once used as a special Easter decoration, but instead of keeping it hidden in the back of a china cabinet, try using it to store organic cotton balls. ($2.50; maximhy.com)

Vintage glass florist frog with EcoTools makeup brushes & Aveda makeup brushes:

These florist frogs were originally used to hold flower stems in place for flower arranging. Found for about three dollars at flea markets, they're perfect for storing eco-chic makeup brushes. ($8-12; target.com and $12-34; aveda.com)

"Getting organized doesn't mean spending a lot of money. Be resourceful and repurpose what you already have."

—Danny Seo

Vintage glass tea cup

Tea cups with chips can no longer be used to drink out of, but are perfect for storing anything small like cosmetic rounds or bobby pins. This one is nice because it's clear so you can see exactly what's inside.

Pangea Organics Eye Cream

This all-natural blend of rare Turkish rose and white tea work to nourish and repair the delicate skin around the eyes. Super concentrated, a little bit goes a long way. ($55; pangeaorganics.com)

Acca Kappa Beechwood Comb in a recycled glass jelly jar

This natural wood comb is great for working out tangles and the jar is the simplest thing to find at home. If you don't have one around, the next time you finish up your jelly, place the jar into a pot of boiling water and voila—a new container. ($28; shopaccakappa.com)

Wholearth Beauty + Bath Certified Organic Perfume Spray No. 7

Made strictly with organic alcohol, fragrance, and water, this spritz has spicy notes of bergamot, basil, and mandarin and an earthy dry-down of sandalwood and vanilla. ($65; wholearthbeauty.com)

J.R. Watkins Weatherproofing Lip Balm in Raspberry

Perfect for when there's a chill in the air, this is designed to hydrate lips and keep moisture from escaping with autumn winds. The all-natural ingredients make it a lip-friendly pick. ($3; jrwatkins.com)