100-percent natural and 85-percent certified-organic gloss that comes in five lush colors.

One of the best beauty bargains is Burt's Bees Super Shiny Natural Lip Gloss ($7 each, www.burtsbees.com), which comes in two new shades, Juicy Peach and Sheer Lemon. Better still, the all-natural all-star glosses use castor-and-sunflower seed oil, same as pricier brands.

Sukicolor Luscious Lips Berry Cream Trio ($28, www.sukipure.com) contains lip repair butter (made from organic jojoba and sunflower oils) and two berry-shade cream stains (also made with organic sunflower seed oil, as well as fair-trade shea butter, and non-GMO vitamin E) in a small, mirrored compact with a lip brush.

ABOUT FACE

After 20 years as a traditional makeup artist (and resulting health problems), Rose-Mary Swift founded her line of chemical-free organic cosmetics. Her best-selling Living Luminizer ($38, www.rmsbeauty.com), like the rest of her elegant yet unprocessed products, hearkens a raw food philosophy—organic and natural ingredients in their purest possible form.

An easy-to-read list of ingredients is often good indication of green chemistry. The rule applies to Von Natur Liquid Foundations ($38, www.vonnatur.com), made with organic aloe and jojoba and loads of botanicals down to the organic-red-tea preservative system, also a beneficial antioxidant.

The Cleaners

Physician's Formula Organic Wear Makeup Remover Towelettes ($9.95 for 25 towelettes, www.physiciansformula.com) do the job with organic orange water, aloe vera, and lavender essential oil for a natural approach and scent. To gently remove eye-makeup, new single-use swabs Jane Iredale Dot the I ($22 for 50, dermstore.com) are pre-dipped in all-natural lavender flower water, aloe, algae extract, and oat kernel extract. Maxim Organic Cotton Rounds (www.maximhy.com, $2.49 for 80) get two gold stars: The cotton is organic and instead of chlorine bleach, the company uses whitening hydrogen peroxide. —M.G.

Korres Face Primer ($28, www.korres.com) is a silicone-free complexion smoother that's 99 percent natural, paraben-free, and a hot ticket from the popular Greek beauty line.

Don't just call it a loose powder.

Jane Iredale's Amazing Base Mineral Foundation SPF 20 ($48, www.iredale.com), one of the first mineral-makeup lines to launch in spas, is also a concealer, foundation, and sunscreen.

Dr. Hauschka Rouge Powder Duo in rose ($29.95, www.drhauschka.com), containing minerals and biodynamic botanicals from

A NATURAL BEAUTY

Lauren Hutton is a great beauty, as well as the brains behind her own "age-friendly" beauty product range, which just launched its first natural makeup palette. The new Naturals Face Disc ($70, www.verta.com) is a wholesome spin-off of her best-selling compact, and comes with 11 pots of makeup—everything you'll need minus the mascara. The 95-percent natural ingredients include an anti-aging cocktail of grapeseed and avocado oils, green tea, and vitamins A, E, and C, because "makeup should be not only help us look better, but be good for our skin," says Hutton, who took out fillers and ingredients that cause the makeup to settle into wrinkles or contribute to dryness. Why the change of heart? "It's obviously important to use organic ingredients. Chemical water, chemical air, chemical food, and chemical trends since the industrial age have not been proven like nature has." —M.G.
